

Making MICHIGAN

symposium

1967

Shock Waves: The Detroit Rebellion and Its Reverberations

March 31, 2017

Experiencing the Rebellion in the City of Detroit

11:15 a.m.–1:00 p.m. | Room 100
Hatcher Graduate Library Gallery

The 1967 rebellion rocked Detroit and the nation. This panel highlights the experiences of Detroit residents who lived through and shaped these events. Featuring Herb Boyd, Christian Davenport, Bill McGraw, Danielle McGuire, Ike McKinnon.

Experiencing the Rebellion on Campus and in Ann Arbor

2:00–3:45 p.m. | Room 100
Hatcher Graduate Library Gallery

This panel of alumni and campus activists will discuss the protests of the Black Action Movement and its connection to left-labor activism. With Rich Feldman, Matthew Lassiter, Austin McCoy, Cynthia Stephens.

The Rebellion's Legacies

4:00–5:45 p.m. | Room 100
Hatcher Graduate Library Gallery

In this panel, activists, journalists, and scholars will assess the legacy of 1967—including how and to what extent city leaders and University officials attempted to remedy racial inequalities and injustices. Featuring Sheila Cockrel, Angela Dillard, Stephen Henderson, Suzanne Smith, Heather Thompson.

Additional support from the Bicentennial Office, Department of History, and Eisenberg Institute for Historical Studies.