

2017 Nam Center For Korean Studies Professional Development Workshop

Korea through the Arts: Tradition and Modernity

Saturday, September 23, 2017

University of Michigan | Weiser Hall, Room 455 | 500 Church St., Ann Arbor, MI

Also possible to attend remotely

While we often hear news about Korea's security issues and smartphones, little is said about Korea's rich artistic traditions that go back millennia.

Through a series of lectures focused on dance, music and fine arts, as well as a hands-on demonstration on Korean folk painting and a visit to the Korean galleries at the University of Michigan Museum of Art, this workshop will shed light on contemporary Korean arts, showing how Korea has reinterpreted its own tradition, merged it with the contemporary global practice and successfully exported it all over the world.

Registration Deadline September 20

Register to attend remotely or in person at: <http://bit.ly/koreaworkshop2017>

SCECH credits available ($10 processing fee)

Lunch and snacks provided Travel reimbursements available for eligible participants