

The Law, Justice, and Social Change (LJSC) minor offers students a coherent curriculum that emphasizes the relationship between legal institutions, inequality, and the capacity of social groups to produce fundamental social change.

The minor in Law, Justice, and Social Change will offer students:

- An understanding of theoretical perspectives on justice and on the connection between law and society
- Frameworks for thinking about legal compliance, deviance, and resistance
- Perspectives for thinking about the relationship between “law on the books” and “law in action”
- Tools for thinking about the relationship between law and social change
- Understandings of the law in international contexts and in regard to human rights issues
- The foundation of theory, methods, and substantive knowledge necessary to develop informed perspectives on criminality, crime policy, and the social consequences of legal punishment
- Tools for understanding the role of social policies in creating and ameliorating inequality

For students interested in the following career paths:

- Law
- Public Policy
- Criminal Justice
- Social Work
- Grassroots Social Change

PREREQUISITE COURSE

Before declaring the minor in Law, Justice, and Social Change, students must complete one prerequisite course with a C- or better. First and second year students should enroll in either SOC 100: Intro to Soc or SOC 102: Intro to Soc: Special Topics. Third and fourth year students should enroll in either SOC 300: Principles and Problems of Sociology or SOC 302: Health & Society - Intro to Soc. The credits of the prerequisite course are not included in the 15 credits required to complete the minor. Students should only take ONE prerequisite course; no credit will be granted for the second prerequisite course taken.
